Company Overview & Project Needs

A leading global supplier of innovative and sustainable interior car parts for Original Equipment Manufacturers. Headquartered in Europe with locations around the globe, including this North American Headquarters in Michigan.

The North American Headquarters consisted of 150 employees sitting in large, 8x8 cubicles with traditional conference rooms and executive suites. The company was going through a rebranding process and wanted their office space to reflect the new brand and their goal of executive approachability. With employee wellness in mind, the company wanted to give their employees a choice on how and where they work. This meant scaling down open plan offices to create more space for huddle rooms, so employees could have a choice of how and where to work throughout the day. Executives requested offices that were cohesive with the open plan environment and portrayed approachability to the C-suite.

The Results

The headquarters project included employee input from the beginning design stages. Divi workstations, including glass up-mount and PET L-wrap screens, Calibrate Series storage, and height adjustable tables were mock-uped for feedback. The employees loved the proposed workstations, which were smaller than existing, but provided storage for personal items and the option to work standing. The PET L-Wrap screen gave a strong sense of privacy and also felt more open than their current cubicles. The employees were given a choice in seating, and Devens was the overwhelming choice, with comments centered around increased comfort. The C-Suite used Calibrate Casegoods, incorporating height adjustable desks and using the same laminates as the open plan to create cohesiveness throughout the offices and support their goal of approachability.

The contemporary design coupled with low price and high quality led to this great win. Additionally, a dealer who is committed to service from design to install and partnered with AIS when needed, is what won the job for the headquarters and future facility changes throughout the US.
